Rev. Stephen Atkinson (Guest Minister):

BIG DIFFICULT WORDS: BORN AGAIN

Some religious terms are so difficult for Unitarian Universalists to identify with that we ignore them. But, boy, are we missing something when we do that! We look today at the experience of awakening—transformation, breakthrough, new awareness, enlightenment—that can lead to Regeneration. Being 'born again' is an uplifting experience open to all whatever we believe.

Sun. Apr. 22

Rev. Peter Boullata: Natural Resources

On this Earth Day, let's explore the virtues that shape our response to the environmental crisis: hope, patience, courage. What can we learn about these and rebirth from observing the natural world? (New Member Ceremony & Child Dedications will take place during today's service)

Sun. Apr. 29

Allan Gross: The Greening of Death Care

"After the moment of death .. We should get the hell out of the way, with our bodies decently planted in the earth to nourish other forms of life — weeds, flowers, shrubs, trees, which support other forms of life, which support the ongoing human pageant - the lives of our children. That seems good enough to me." - Edward Abbey, author and environmentalist, who was buried in his sleeping bag under a pile of rocks in the Arizona desert in March, 1988.
